Feeding the Baby in Summer

The proper feeding of her baby is a problem for every mother at all seasons of the year. In the summer it is a more difficult problem than during other seasons because of the effects of hot weather on her child and upon perishable foods.

The baby who is naturally fed is fortunate. There is nothing just as good as breast milk for the baby. It is pure and it does not spoil. It is the natural food which the child is best able to digest. The baby fed at the breast is protected against illness in a better way than by any other method of feeding.

Such being the case it is obvious that every mother should nurse her baby. The baby should not be weaned, unless the mother has been instructed by her doctor to do so. No mother should assume the responsibility of depriving her child of its natural food for little or no reason. To do so means to needlessly expose her child to danger.

When the time comes for the child to be fed with artificial foods the mother has a difficult and time-consuming task then when she was nursing the baby. There is only one safe way to feed the child artificially and that is to use foods prepared in accordance with the instructions of the doctor.

Cow's milk is the basis for most infant feedings. The milk should be pasteurized or boiled. Whatever is added to the milk, whether it be water or some other ingredients, should be in exact amounts prescribed by the doctor. The formula for feeding must be altered from time to time. As the baby grows he requires increasing amounts and varieties of food.

No food is good food for the baby unless it is clean to begin with. It must be prepared in the most cleanly way, and kept in clean containers. Unless such care is taken contamination is apt to occur which is likely to lead to illness.

Feeding the baby properly is but part of the protection he needs during the hot weather. Frequent baths, fresh clothes and protection against the full strength of the sun's rays are important. Health does not depend upon any one thing, but there is no doubt that much of the illness and many of the deaths of babies in summer are the result of improper feeding.

History of Depressions In Past Told In Brief

You must always have something with which to draw a comparison. Therefore when we wonder how long present depression will continue, we turn to the past to see how long former spells of hard times lasted. In the last hundred years, we are told, there have been thirteen major depressions and six or seven minor ones: Depression in 1859, 12 months; Depression in 1869, 8 months; Depression in 1873, 30 months; Depression in 1880, 20 months; Depression in 1887, 10 months; Depression in 1893, 23 months; Depression in 1903, 25 months; Depression in 1907, 12 months; Depression in 1909, 8 months; Depression in 1917, 14 months.

Now, the notable feature about these panics is that, every one of them has been followed by flush times, and the longer the depression lasted the longer and more active was the reign of prosperity that followed.

FORTY-FIVE YEARS OF PROGRESS

A forgotten artist, too modest to sign his name, and a second-hand dealer found the strange combination that brought to light one of the best examples of the growth of Canada's trade with the Orient. Forty-five years ago the first ship ever to fly the house-flag of the Canadian Pacific, a flag that has since found its way into practically every port in the world, set out from Port Moody, B.C. She was the barque-rigged steamer "Albatross", and such a marvel was she that the modest artist referred to transferred her graceful shape to canvas with astonishing detail.

Another artist, chancing upon the picture, imposed it upon a photograph of the latest Canadian Pacific ship in the Orient trade, the magnificent Empress of Japan. They are shown here in exact proportion as they would have appeared painting each other on the broad walls of the Pacific.

Some idea of the development of shipping in the 45 years may be gained by a comparison. The "Albatross" was 500 feet six inches long, 42 1/2 feet wide, had a tonnage of 3,370 and a speed of 16 knots. The "Empress of Japan" is 910 feet long, 37 1/2 feet wide, has a tonnage of 26,000 and, during her record-breaking passage between Vancouver, Victoria, Yokohama, Shanghai, Hong Kong and Manila has developed as high as 23 knots—more than half as fast again.

A strange coincidence is that the "Albatross" was chartered from W. G. Pearce, who later became the Pacific Shipping Company which famous Clydebuilt shipyard built the Empress of Japan two years ago.

Reflections in the Village Paper

Newspapers like mirrors cast reflections. As objects along the shore of a lake are mirrored in its surface so the life of a community is outlined in the local press.

In a new country where quick returns reign king, the make-up of the paper does not seem to count for much. It is the information we want. But like the well run dry, we miss it when it is gone. The arrangement of the advertisements, the spacing of the local news, the order given write ups, headings, etc., all function in producing a satisfactory page for the readers.

And local papers display great contrasts. In one paper the sport element overhauled, ed all else, in another, one would think that there were only churches and church going people in that community, in still another it would seem that the only live organizations were the village council and the Board of Trade while still another completely ignores both these organizations. From some papers one would never know that there were churches, schools, fraternities or such like in the community. So, too, the local news, week after week centres around a limited group which may or may not represent the community and lead to the conclusion that these were the only people who lived there.

A study of the advertisements is very enlightening. Here are the professional card, the village has a doctor, lawyer, several teachers, etc. Again there are so many stores in town including drug, hardware, grocery, general stores, etc. The grain elevators hold a large place in our western life, so we see that certain companies are represented there. And how we miss the railway notices. Certain line or lines touch the community and express trains arrive as follows.

And what mysteries the local write-up reveals! The churches whose notices we have already seen among the advertisements have had outside ministers and are doing particular tasks at this season. The women's organizations, the number and names carefully noted, are all on the job. The school in its various activities, including information about the Board and staff have a place. And the town has been able to keep certain teams and individuals in the fields of athletics.

To portray clearly and accurately that life is a full sized man's job, it might pay each of us to take time and sitting down, carefully place together these details and see the picture that an outsider would see of our community if his only information were a copy of the local paper.

UNUS SOLUS

God In Nature

The God I worship fills the earth—
His's present in the rosebud's birth,
Each trembling leaf His power thrills,
His music sings in rippling rills,
His breath I feel in breezes free;
His architect of every tree.
His smile is seen in dimpling wave
Most clearly than in cloistered nave.

His glory meets my dillard eyes
When'er I lift them to the skies,
Where rays fingers of the light
Are grappling with the robes of night.

The richness of His wardrobe's seen
When Spring displays her tints of green;
Or when the vivid autumn leaves
A coat of many colors weaves.

When Winter's sway is at its height,
I glimpse His regal robes of white,
As all the landscape they enshroud
With fleecy filaments of cloud.

In drooping bough and tufted stem
My fingers touch His garments hem;
And, though a poor, insensate clod,
I see the artistry of God.

He proposes to spend some time in fishing expeditions both in the province and also in the Rockies where he will meet Irvin A. Cobb and Conroy River Cooper, also famous American publicists.

Tourists spent almost one million dollars for every working day in Canada last year, a sum virtually equal to $260,000,000, the manufacturing, Ontario, Quebec, points out and claims that this sums it into the class of big business which should be carefully fostered. Commenting on the same subject, the Montreal, N.B. News states that there are some 100,000 tourists in Canada each year and yet realized that the tourist business could do for them.

Evidence of the growing popularity of the Canadian Pacific Railway for rail travel is shown by the fact that the Quebec Province and Montreal, N.B. News states that the trip in four specials on the Friday, returning the following Sunday night. The Mayor of Toronto issued a hearty welcome to those making the trip.

The thirty-two business and professional men and women from the British Isles now touring British Columbia under provincial government auspices found Victoria much to their liking and quite up to advance notions of being the most "charming" city on this side of the Atlantic. They were particularly impressed by the beauty of the formal gardens at some of the homes they inspected and especially with the famous Butchart Gardens. They are travelling by Canadian Pacific Railway. (562)
